A BOUNTY ON SHIRKERS

The Safety League of Quebec is offering $100 per head for the apprehension of hit-and-run drivers in that province. That looks like a promising way to get results. It gives every incentive to a person to identify the number of the automobile that figures in a street or road accident. The only objection is that in proportion as it succeeds it will fill up the jails with cowards whom the other inmates may be ashamed to mix with. Seeing that people are being killed and wrecked almost every day by offenders of this class in Alberta, the Governors of this province might follow the Quebec lead.

BIBLE READINGS IN SCHOOL*

There will not be unanimity of opinion, by a long, long way, on the action of the school board in making the reading of a section from the Bible a part of the day's program in the schools of the city. There are some lively chapters in the history of Canada which record incidents connected with the introduction of religious teaching in the public schools. It may be that the school board is actuated by this action rather than by the view that it would be heard of during the coming municipal campaign. May it be hoped that the discussion will keep within the bounds of good temper, and also to the point of what is best for the public schools. All schools will benefit or suffer through the innovation? Harm, not good, would come from a local reproduction of the historic "Ross Bible" controversy which once raged through the length of Ontario.

Our preliminary view is that, to be in order, the present school board is nearing the end of its year. The change cannot well be introduced before the beginning of the new school term. For the conduct of the schools during that term the present board, as a board, will have no responsibility. It would have been more in keeping with the proprieties if the present board had left this matter to be settled by their successors. Had that been done, the new board would have been created during the campaign before action was taken, and the new members would take their seats with some claim to represent the consensus of opinion concerning it. The present trustees had no mandate from the public to make any such change. Nor is it clear that they have legal power or warrant to tie the hands of those who will take their places a few weeks hence.

A SOUND PLATFORM

Major Bury makes a strong appeal for re-election when he declares—as he has done—that he stands for the continuation of the policy of progressive street improvement. This is the same policy which he has already effected a betterment in the appearance of the city that is a matter for pride on the part of residents and a subject for comment by visitors. There is no doubt at all that because of this betterment, Edmonton now makes a favorable impression upon the stranger such as it did not make a year ago. Nor any doubt that the citizens generally are well satisfied that the improvements are a good thing. To continue a policy that is so obviously good and certainly profitable is the one reasonable thing to do; the one thing that Edmonton at the present time could not afford to not do.

Street improvement, of course, includes a good many things besides the laying of pavement, upon which attention has naturally centred during the past year. Along with this will have to go the construction of several new grading, resurfacing and maintenance of streets, grading and boulevards. These and other improvements come properly within the meaning of a general term, and all must have a part in any progressive and constructive policy. All parts of the city that are involved in the question of street improvement, not merely those sections where conditions demand a permanent roadway, will be constructed at once.

A Major Bury, when he took the city is now in a much improved position to continue this class of work. Its financial affairs have prospered very materially during the last twelve months. The utility enterprises have been earning money, the unprofitable sales, and promises to turn in a surplus for the year of $450,000 or more. At the same time, property which the city took over in lieu of taxes some years ago has been going back into private ownership—and thus onto the tax roll.

In view of these conditions the amount of street improvement projected for next year is too little, rather than too much. It is certainly the minimum that a city so situated should consider. The population is growing, business on the up-grade, and the prospects bright. Edmonton must keep step with its contemporaries in appearance and in the facilities for carrying on business. Next year should see a some what larger measure of advancement made in lifting the streets than has been recorded in this year.

Father Dick

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

Father Dick I asked for you
As I was always thought to do;

Met the judge and stopped to say:
"I'm a good boy, I'm a good boy."

So kindly came the dad and reply:

"Father left us when he died."

No one thought to send a word,

People said, "He's a good boy."

For your great soul passing by;

For a son from whom you're gone,

Never dreaming you were gone

Have kept you living on.

Galant soul and smiling friend

Did your spirit who?

I was absent last July;

Shame on me, I made

Our years of friendship fade?

Father Dick, though never more

Then I'll sleep with him.

He's a good boy, he's a good boy.

I shall think of you today

FEATURE WOMEN & REALM CLUBS

EDITED BY LOTTA C. DEMPSEY

Hon. Irene Parlby Returns From Long Rest Abroad

Alberta's Woman Minister Found Danish Women More Like Canadians Than Any Others—Immigration Workers Must Turn to Wives in Old Land

Stepped in the quiet of the Scottish countryside and refreshed by the sun and land, Hon. Irene Parlby, minister without portfolio in the Alberta government, arrived in Edmonton on Tuesday evening after a long vacation. Her English life presented few changes after seventeen years, said Mrs. Parlby, but her presence felt and a network of friends had been formed in the country to unite even the far corner districts. The weeks spent in England and Scotland were filled with a variety of trips and holidays, and this also stateside on necessary occasions, keeping to the country for the greater part. The women of the country, she said, were more like us than most every part of the country, and were growing of very real value to the English people. She was asked if she was from this, however, her interests have been more in the Canadian than in the English years.

Mrs. Parlby felt that immigrants workers must turn directly to the wives of England and Scotland as the best source of information. She came back from making the move to Canada, the first of immigrants workers, the first to be married to the boys by a former Alberta man, who had been a member of the splendid type that is being sent to English Canada.

Mrs. Parlby stayed briefly in Denmark and Sweden and in Copenhagen saw the King and Queen. She was invited to that city. She was enthusiastic about the fine, intelligent, able women with whom she came in contact. The Danish and their wives were more like the people of Canada than any other people. They had the same open-hearted hospitality. She had no interest in the kind of work she had done, but had not lost their old charm for Mrs. Parlby; the remained Canadian at heart, and returned more staunchly western than ever.
